HEADMASTER FAREWELL CHAPEL ADDRESS

It was ten years ago this September that I stood in this pulpit and said my first words to the school as their new headmaster. Save for some members of the present staff, none of you were here at that time. Yet, in many senses, the school I speak to now is the same school I spoke to then, for the idea of this school binds us all - the present, the past, and even the future - into a larger unity which is the true St. George's College.

Ten years ago I expressed the firm belief that this chapel is at the very centre of the life of our school. In the intervening years I have found no reason to change that belief. Our coming here regularly, as we do, has many purposes - and many benefits, if we but open our ears, our eyes, our minds, and even our hearts. This, we have so often been told, is a place in which to worship God. There are many ways of doing this - many more than most of us, perhaps, suspect. But somehow we have allowed ourselves to become locked into the idea that worshipping is listening impassively to prayers intoned, to psalms chanted, to lessons read, to sermons preached, and to hymns sung by a captive congregation.

"What does it all mean?" we ask. OR "Can it mean all that much?" OR "Who cares?"

There are in English grammar, as I hope most of you know, three persons in the singular (I, you, and he, she or it), and three persons in the plural (we, you, and they), the latter being but extensions of the former. Taken together with their verbs, these six persons allow us to express most of what we know and understand about human experience. Of these six persons, surely the most interesting, the most revealing, and at times the most dangerous, is the first person singular: I. Everytime we use this person, we say something about ourselves - sometimes more than we wish to say. It is most especially the first person singular which announces, for better or for worse, our humanity, and which gives that humanity its particular characteristics.

One of the most remarkable of those characteristics, I think, is that, although we are all separate, individual beings, no two of us being exactly alike, each of us thinking his own thoughts and living out his own destiny, it seems that we search for a larger unity, that we yearn for a one-ness with our fellow human beings that cannot be satisfied within the individual. That search, that yearning, finds its expression in our wishing to live together in societies, in our sense of nationality, in our sense of team, in our sense of 'college', in our sense of purpose in striving toward a common goal. Each time we sing our national anthem or our school hymn, we express, however unconsciously, our larger unity. Each time we cheer on our fellows on the playing field, we express the fact, however unconsciously, that, as a school, we are one. And each time we come together in this chapel, we engage in a corporate act which, in its special way, reminds us of that unity which transcends our individual selves.

Self-realization and personal destiny are most important elements in that phenomenon we call 'human nature' and deserve their rightful place in the ordering of our lives. Yet there are times, and they are many, when the 'I' in us must give way to the larger need of the 'we', or the 'you' or the 'they' - when individual interest must give way to the larger interest. Indeed, one could say that the greatest task the human spirit has set itself here on earth is to find that ideal and proper relationship between the first person singular - the 'I' - and each of the other five persons.

No society, including this little community we call St. George's College, can survive and flourish, if the only voice that is heard is 'I'. No society, including this little community we call St. George's College, can survive and flourish, if its individual members always insist upon putting their own interests ahead of those of others.

No society, including this little community we call St. George's College, can survive and flourish UNLESS each and everyone of us is prepared to consider always the effect of his thoughts, of his words, and of his actions upon his fellows - UNLESS each and everyone of us is prepared to give the 'I' its proper place, but no more - UNLESS each and everyone of us is prepared, consciously, to make his conscience the master of his will.

The task that the human spirit has set itself is, as I have said, a great one. And if we ignore the implications of that task, we do so at our peril.

Our coming together in this chapel affords us, then, the opportunity to reflect upon our relationship with our fellows - upon the relationship of the 'I' with the other five persons. In this is the beginning of worthy knowledge. Our coming together in this chapel also affords us the opportunity to sense and to express our awareness of the larger unity for which we yearn. In this are the seeds of true worship.

Our prayers, thoughtfully said, our psalms gratefully chanted, our lessons and sermons attentively heard, and our hymns joyfully sung, are but extensions of the first two opportunities we have when we come together in this chapel. Taken together, these three elements of chapel worship afford us the greatest opportunity of all: to recognize the greatest unity of all - our unity in the one God, who is our Father.

My dear boys, as my retirement approaches, this is the message I leave to you, and to those who follow.

God bless you all.

Amen

JUNIOR SCHOOL REPORT

Recently, I read an article called "Memetics: The Science of Information Viruses" by Keith Henson. The author is suggesting that some ideas function in a similar fashion to viruses. He refers to such ideas as "memes".

Viruses are a fascinating group of living things. Although extremely primitive when viewed from the "heights" of our evolutionary progress, they survive and flourish with few active systems. They consist of a few strands of DNA, the chemical basis of cell information, covered in a protein coating. Because of their minimal content, they lack the ability to reproduce themselves. Undaunted by this seeming impediment to continuance, viruses take over control of more advanced cells and force them to produce baby viruses instead of self-replication.

Henson makes an analogy between the functioning of viruses and the ability of some ideas to grow and infect individuals. We have had more than enough examples of how corrupt ideas can self-perpetuate, grow, and subvert the logical process of thought, but I want to give an example of how one man's excellent idea has infected many with positive results.

This past year has been a momentous one in that the last two founders of the school have retired from active service: Mr. John Allen as Headmaster, and Mr. John Bradley, previously Assistant Headmaster and Director of Music. Mr. Bradley conceived the idea of a school that would promote music, an involvement with the Anglican church, and academic excellence while he was the Director of the summer Choir School at Trinity College School in Port Hope. (I find it interesting that I was a boy at the Choir School in the late 50's and early 60's, and that while I was in music practice or playing sports, discussions were going on in Mr. Bradley's rooms that would form the place that now provides my employment.)

Mr. Bradley's idea "infected" others: Mr. John Allen, Dr. Jack Wright (the founding Headmaster), Fr. Kenneth Scott (the first Chaplain), and many others. Like a virus, the idea, though initially a simple wish, grew and changed its outer form without modifying its content as more individuals "caught" it and, as it went from person to person, it became an original and exciting possibility.

I am convinced that this virus will continue to infect others (as it has me) and St. George's will follow its founding roots. Fr. Scott has written a book about the start of the College wherein he uses the analogy of slaying the many dragons that stood in the way of the progress of SGC. I have here employed another analogy to try to explain the remarkable beginning and staying power of this idea. I believe that the fascination of this school for so many lends itself to the many attempts to explain its success.

Let us hope that, as we enter St. George's jubilee year, the "epidemic" will continue and that the school will go from glory to glory.

UPPER SCHOOL REPORT

As you read this, I will be in Cambridge (5 hours later than Toronto), settling into a new school, a new challenge, and a new lifestyle. As I write this, you are probably enjoying your summer holidays and I am busy tidying things up at St. George's as well as packing for England.

The academic year 1987/88 was one of major change for many of us. I remember writing in this yearbook 2 years ago that what we were trying to teach at St. George's, amongst other things, was to not fear change. Little did I know how timely and true that statement would be. I also should have added that when change does occur, it need not only be that the status quo is unacceptable, but also that the alternative may be better.

I hope that you will permit me one personal comment before closing. I want to acknowledge and thank my wife, Ms Tevlin, for her steadfast support over the last 10 years, for the splendid contribution she has made to the College in the last 4 years building the Art Programme into one of the best in the country, and for making the Yearbook, in the last 3 years, a much more positive, accurate, and creative depiction of the school.

We leave St. George's with fond memories of many students, and proud of whatever contributions we may have made to their development. One thing we hope won't change in the future is the way St. George's boys are: confident but not arrogant; mature as well as subtle; intelligent but also thoughtful.

We wish you all the best.

David Lee Roth

Thank you very much St. George's for putting up with me over the last 5 years. I could have never made it through without my friends. To all of those who were my friends. Thanks! and Good luck. Especially P.J. and Theo ... you two guys have shown me what it's like to have true best friends.

As for those who weren't my friends ... have you ever seen "Scarface"? ...I'm coming to get you!

Thanks again ... to everyone.

Scott DeVeber

What a Long Strange Trip it's been."

Greatful Dead

Well guys, it wasn't so long, but my two years at SGC were strange enough. I've had quite a few memorable experiences here: classes with Gage, Gilles and Herb (he was great this year considering his last two jobs!) "Rock me Pantermoller!" Washington: Burger King "I don't care what your order is, get lost!" The hotel Harrington our suites at $85 a night, the stench of room 433. "Jase Baby" -Breezewood - the town of fast food and truck stops, America in a nutshell. Live long and prosper fellas!

There is a quality to SGC which is impossible to qualify; that is to say there is an atmosphere or ambiance present in our school which cannot exist anywhere else. It doesn't have a name and it cannot be properly defined; but everyone who is a part of the school understands it and is uniquely able to benefit from it. In essence what it accomplishes is the forging of unbreakable bond between SGC is and what its students will become.

Protesting the axing of the California Music Tour with song!

Mr. Stevenson
Bearded Coffeemaker.

Mr. Clarke
Honestly Mr. D'Arcy I did teach the Grade 10's basic math equations. Now they are your problem. HA!

Mr. Wilson
Financially the class is great! However as managers they stink!

Dr. Skalinski

Da, Da, Da... What I am saying is the following ... a mole is not a little fury animal, and SGC is not a zoo full of monkeys.

Mr. Wade West

Let me get this straight. You want to join the band?

Mr. Birkett
That's art?

Mr. Masse

I'm tired let's go out for dinner.

Mr. Hutchison
Mr. McMaster do you have a suggestion for this problem?

Mr. Wilson
I tried the tonic and cream but they haven't done any good.

Mr. McMaster
Well the official medical procedures didn't do a bit of good for me.
How about you, Mr. Wilson?

Mr. Paulin
Ha, I have more hair than anyone else.

Fr. Michael
Three more collections and we'll beat Oral Roberts.

Mr. Schreiner
The pigs will be on the test if I can find them.

You're not serious.

Mr. Morgan
You got a better idea?

Mr. Dunkley
The Donut Shop is busy.

Mr. Nakatsu
I'm learning some new arm tricks.

Mr. Ackley
Like the man said, "The Donut Shop is busy."

Mr. O'Meara
Lovely Weather.

Mr. Demierre
Oye, oye, oye sunshine back row.

Mr. McElroy
Don't I dress snappy.

Mrs. McRory
Do you realize your books are five months overdue.

Mr. Martin
Greetings from the basement below your basement.

Mr. Timm
I've killed people for less.

Mr. Love
Shaggy, but where is Scooby?

Mr. Walker
Nasal congestion maybe?

Mr. Bryant
Have you been naughty or nice this year?

Mr. Leach
These shades are great I can't see my class.

Mr. Hutchison
Try to get by me!

Dr. Barlow
I didn't sleep well last night.

STAFF

PREFECTS

We the 87-88 Prefects have enjoyed our final year at St. George's.

There was Lunch duty, chapel duty and uniform enforcement, to name a few of our responsibilities. In the future we hope that students will curb their non-conformist tendencies, then everyone will get along together better, and events such as car wash duty will no longer be necessary.

One of the more interesting privileges would be the breakfasts shared with the girls' schools. These early morning meetings were the beginning of many lasting friendships. It is a practise that should be continued regularly in the future in order to maintain good inter-school relations.

Many wonderful work periods were spent in the Prefect Lounge, and many wonderfully juicy and somewhat revealing stories were told. The S.G.C. Grapevine is amazingly active.

We would like to wish the best of luck to everyone next year, especially the incoming prefects. The school will be going through many changes. We hope they are for the better. Remember, improvement without change is impossible.

Thank you St. George's

Mr. S: "Just one more minute please!!!"

GRADE 12-W

BACK ROW: S. West, G. Smith, J. Rea, F. Secker, K. Pallett, J. Vanloenen.

MIDDLE ROW: G. Petkovitch, N. Shelly, M. Rogers, S. Turvey, J. Sievenpiper, A. Satchu, J. Ritch.

FRONT ROW: S. Yamada, H. Prichard, A. Polak, J. Zeidman, A. Rapanos, J. Warren, S. Stren.

The only time that I see all the people who are true 12-W's is in the morning, when we all assemble together at about eight o'clock in the morning for attendance. The radio is usually blaring at a wakening volume as everyone is finishing off last minute homework, reading "Stern" magazine, talking about life or just beating each other senseless in a fight that Scott Yamada has probably started.

Angelo Rapanos and Scott Stren can be found together exchanging stories about Miami, or another topic which they know nothing about (but think they do); automobiles.

Matt Rogers and Steven Turvey who are the only real grade twelves in our form, have to put up with us pseudo twelves who probably seem like obnoxious little idiots to them.

Simon West is vegetating in his chair. He is probably projecting himself astrally to home and is watching cartoons on television.

Hugh Prichard and Frank Secker are looking through a copy of "Stern" magazine and come across a picture of a topless female and faint from sheer ecstasy. Asif Satchu trips over them and falls on the floor and starts to cry because he gets his McGill University jacket dirty. John VanLoenen momentarily laughs at them but then goes on talking: something that he does quite a lot.

Geoffrey Petkovitch makes his one minute appearance by announcing that he has arrived then leaves back to the yearbook room to drink instant coffee and listen to CHUM AM. Alan Polak and John Sievenpiper are giving John Rea extra help in Math, Chemistry and Economics.

Mr. Walker enters, asks if everyone is present, marks it down on the attendance sheet then leaves. Everyone goes to class, late of course, but some things never change.

GRADE 10-K

BACK ROW: M. Cheang, G. Tom, M. Parren, A. Bennett, T. Radford, D. Stephenson, A. Cann, M. Kesting.
MIDDLE ROW: A. Hurst, M. Manchester, J. Peters, J. Start, D. Teichman, S. Warren, B. Loughridge, B. Turvey, Mr. Keenan.
FRONT ROW: C. Woolard, M. Atkins, M. Thompson, M. Shaw, C. Sievert, A. Cantor, W. Kopplin, R. Vile.
ABSENT: J. Atkinson, S. Herron, A. Colussi.

Throughout the year 87/88 the 10K students have acquired, through long periods of study and enthusiasm, educational standards equal to that of any Harvard graduate (well almost any). This knowledge however was not easily acquired. That is greatly justified considering the concoction of athletes, brains, computer wizzes, movie critics, and debaters that live in 10K. However, when one considers how much training we as S.G.C. students have been force-fed, it is not only natural, but obvious to assume that with the help and guidance of Mr. Keenan, 10K has and still is improving its status as the best homeroom in the Upper School.

Such classes as History, Science, Math, English, French, Comp-Sci. etc., have been of great influence upon the lives of the 10K students. Yet, nothing can match the educational qualities that the television of 10K is willing to offer. Such less than great teachers as Brad Griffin (Toronto Rocks) have taught us to try and appreciate such great artists as Corey Hart, Prince, and above all Michael Jackson (Ooow, He's BAD!) Even our friendly neighbourhood "Spiderman" drops in to give us a few tips on capturing dirty, corrupt, villains.

As we continue to develop our minds, we look forward to the few remaining years that S.G.C. has to offer us. Needless to say, that when we have graduated from S.G.C. we will remember grade 10.

GRADE 10-P

BACK ROW: N. Freiberg, G. Hardwick, J. Moore, T. Jackson, M. Atkinson, M. Thompson, C. Yelle, N. Miller, R. Skippon.
 MIDDLE ROW: J. Chorny, D. Thompson, K. Roberts, N. Zeibots, M. Johnston, A. Staples, R. McIntosh, A. Ayliffe, G. Browne, Mr. Paulin.
 FRONT ROW: T. Landon, C. Coristine, D. Bowlby, R. Gilfillan, T. Thomas, C. Mackenzie, R. DuToit.

10P, the class of the happy whistlers. Teachers and other students at S.G.C. know our class as the whistlers, whistling the theme from the Breakfast Club. The P stands for Paulin, the short, tough Frenchman who keeps our class in line. This teacher is new to the school as of 87/88. Mr. Paulin started off the year not knowing the rules of attendance. He would run all over the school taking attendance from such places as the Comp-Sci room and math room, where students were scrambling to get there assignments done. Little did he know that we were supposed to be in our home room at 8:20 A.M.

10P which was formally known as 9J, last year lost a few people when the year began, but we had one newcomer, Ryan Macintosh. A true blue Georgian.

Grade ten had a new course, computer science, a course that took up most of our time. Mr. D'Arcy, the teacher of the class felt that the students should enjoy computers. A tough course, but most of us survived and scraped by.

We will leave grade ten on our way to grade eleven or twelve with fond memories of the teachers, Mr. Wilson (Geography Ho!), Mr. Keenan, test returned in a couple of days guys, Mr. Walker and Schreiner, enjoyable Science, Mr. Clarke understandable math, Mr. Kerr interesting English and the indelable makers of CompSci. with Mr. D'Arcy.

GRADE 9-C

BACK ROW: B. Hatch, N. Heth, P. Jack, M. New, C. Schr, P. Maher, C. Sayers.

MIDDLE ROW: B. Lee, B. Tay, C. Ross, M. Jones, M. Rosen, D.S., G. Stewart, C. Wilson, Mr. Clarke.

FRONT ROW: C. Warren, G. Beers, R. Brown, D. Arm, P. Gundy, A. Darcy, A. Long, I. Bhatt.

Another early morning begins on the galactic U.S.S. St. George as the crew stumbles onto the bridge at approximately 8:00 a.m. Earth Standard Time. One of the many small but distinguished groups of crew members, Group No. 9c, restlessly awaits on B deck in room No. 5 for their beloved Captain Clarke to enter and further brief them on the mechanics of spatial mathematics. As D'arcy and Brown chatter and gossip, impatiently awaiting his belated arrival, Capt. Clarke suddenly storms in and bellows for silence. Naturally very few of the crew members respond to him, but Rosen and Beers take out their texts and notes from the previous day.

Captain Clarke begins lecturing in a monotonous voice and very soon a majority of the students, including Armstrong and Gilmer, are lulled into a restful sleep. There are others, though, such as Warren, Shroeder and Schmid, who sit and daydream, looking attentive, but never actually listening to the words being said. Most of the crew are so good at this, that the Captain rarely notices. Hatcher and Hetherington snooze quietly.

As your galactic reporter, Craig Sayers, gazes around the spacious cabin he can almost hear what people are thinking. For example, there is Leach in the far corner reading the latest edition of Space Sports Illustrated, concealed behind a copy of the National Enquirer. There are other members of the crew of course, such as Bhattacharya, who thinks and worries only about whether he will get his daily lunch food supplement on time. His favorite hobby? "Eating."

The newest crew member, Tim Kym, who arrived in the middle of the voyage, appears confused and baffled about what is going on around him during all of our forty minute intellectual enhancement sessions. Stuart can't seem to be able to help him, but perhaps crew medic and psychological counselor Jackson should really tell him that he is not alone.

A shrill ring pierces the air and the crew members, particularly Jones and Newbigging, awake with a start. One period is over. There are only eight more to go. Maher and Wilson both look at the time. We wait for the Captain to dismiss us, and then, with our other brave crew members, Taylor, Ross, and Stuart travel elsewhere.

BACK ROW: R. McKillop, A. Salming, D. Simoncic, C. Wright, A. Dobson, A. Duprey, B. Sinclair, C. Sievert.
MIDDLE ROW: B. Dolan, C. Watchorn, J. Leung, C. Mason, M. Magee, M. Turvey, R. Park, S. Fabry, M. Trecieski, Mr. Demierre.
FRONT ROW: J. Smit, S. Gardiner, R. Chopra, D. Chapman, L. Foreht, M. Andersen, M. Bardyn, K. Rajani.

Attendance was taken. All were shakin', The temperature was ten below zero. Hutchison next taught; he and his bald spot, He was my idol, a hero. Science, then came, Morgan and his game, We liked him, he liked us, it was a truce, Bradley came inside, Walking from side to side, "Too much Kikapoo juice." The bell would ring, We'd get our things, We'd leave the school all hootin', Some were singing, Some were crying, But were we glad? "You're darn tootin'!"

GRADE 8-H

BACK ROW: D. Sankey, R. Cannings, M. Dobson, P. Andras, K. Thompson, S. Hennessey, A. King, J. Perlite.

MIDDLE ROW: M. Collins, M. Lumbers, P. Nobbs, A. Stephenson, R. West, J. Thompson, J. Robins, C. Jones, A. Waschuk, C. Godden, Mr. Hutcherson.

ABSENT: G. Radford.

It was that first day and we all had to pray. With that new teacher of ours, Mr. Hutchison by name. We sat there with fright and laughed with delight. We thought he was mauled, but instead he was bald.

The bell then rang with the loud sound of a bang. Then Mr. Hutchison spoke and everyone awoke. He then with glee, we heard him cry "You all will FAIL with me!!" We then knew this to be, the year that we should all flee.

GRADE 7-B

BACK ROW: F. Satchu, A. Stork, A. Hess, P. Pusey, K. Lint, C. Nordin, J. Thornbury, J. McClelland, S. Cameron.
MIDDLE ROW: J. Dobson, M. Tuters, C. Pillar, G. Hay, C. Rose, D. Bentley-Taylor, M. Stevenson, N. Robins, W. McGuigan, Mr. Birkett.
FRONT ROW: G. Warne, N. Stein, C. Finlay, S. Hayes, T. Magee, I. Miller, D. Sterin, B. Bhatt.

The one bell rings. The hallways are jammed with students trying to beat the bell. Christian Nordin comes into rm. K-5. Suddenly a crumpled up piece of paper flies across the room. Bijal Bhatt is laughing. "You got hit good didn't you?" We were without Charles Finlay who had gone to represent the provincial riding of St. Patrick after ousting Ron Kanter in a hard fought by-election.

Adam Stork, Sandy Cameron walk into the classroom. They're yelling "Where are my hockey sticks I've got a game soon." Julian Thornbury ran in with Gavin Hay's back pack. Then Gavin himself came in screaming for his bag. Matthew Stevenson is talking to Marc Tuters about trying to overthrow Dr. Barlow in a coup. Jonathan Dobson is off in Moscow defending his world chess championship against Garry Kasparov. Stewart Hayes is arranging a meeting of the crazy men and Adam Hess is slumped against the wall trying to borrow money from Gr. Fours. Kevin "has anyone seen my history book?" Lint is neatly tidying out his locker while Tim Magee is showing everyone the 1000th rerun of Pee Wee's Playhouse. John McClelland has gone back to writing books but has been turned down by many publishers. Word has it he's ready to take his own life. David Sterin is busy studying the meaning of life but unfortunately has been caught reading books from the mature section of the library repeatedly. Christian Pillar plays the drums for the "E" Street Band after being approached by Bruce Springsteen. Nicholas Robins has gone to England to sing in Westminster Abbey and Greg Warne has been arrested under the new bill introduced by the Mulroney Government. Patrice Pusey, Ian Miller and Feizal Satchu all were invited to play soccer for the Argentina National team alongside Diego Maradong. All were successful at the tryouts. Well that's us a group of highly cultured gentlemen, major jocks and hundred percent nerds. (Later gents!)

GRADE 7-M

BACK ROW: N. Brown, A. Marcanuel, K. Gundy, N. Holownych, Paul Pusey, D. Lees, B. Bobechko, M. Bracken, Mr. Morgan.
MIDDLE ROW: S. Isbister, R. Rayfield, M. Andersen, N. Blanchette, F. MacFarlane, M. Labarge, C. Weaver, M. Bijur.

ABSENT: D. Frawley, P. Pace.

We are here today at the 7M class awards to start off our awards ceremonies. The first award goes to Matthew Aaronson, the winner of the "But Sir" award. The Sleeping in Class award goes to Kevin Gundy. The "I'll be late for hockey" award goes to Matt Bijur. The Longest Sustained Hairdo award goes to Brian Bobechko. We have a tie for the Bouncing off the Wall award, goes to Sparkie Andersen. The Class Joker award goes to Richard Rayfield. The Untucked Shirt award goes to David Lees, and then suddenly we heard Mr. McElroy says where's your Math book Holownych and Holownych saying "I don't know". After that, the ceremonies were over, and Mr. Morgan said "Thanks for coming gents".

GRADE 6

BACK ROW: D. Burns, H. Boshier, P. Sturgess, D. Vaillancourt, G. Golding, M. Jenkins, J. Creed, A. Austin.
MIDDLE ROW: A. Baranyai, A. Thompson, K. Lakha, T. Reibetanz, J. Miller, A. Carter, P. Altimas, A. duToit, Mr. Leatch.
FRONT ROW: E. Tsang, P. Hardie, T. Keefe, M. Ho, I. Mann, C. Carter, O. Rajani, P. Kellett, N. Boyce.
ABSENT: S. Yelle, A. Neelands.

What's a day in grade six like? Well, it begins with a warm feeling, when the bell rings and tells us we can stop standing outside in the cold. This is soon followed by a crowded feeling, as we all pile into the locker room and try to survive an avalanche of coats, boots, books, elbows and locker doors (ouch!) The survivors, who usually include all twenty-seven of us, then march into the classroom carrying part of the avalanche with us: Math books, and French books. Books, books, books-if they all came to life and demanded space in the classroom, we'd be in deep trouble! Fortunately, however, Mr. Leatch keeps them all in their proper places, and us too.

Lunch is usually more fun. We play wall-ball, which takes a lot of skill and is very enjoyable. The only time we get into trouble is when we play it inside Ketchum Hall (known as Ketchup Hall on hot days), using apples, oranges and even banana (squish!)

Afternoons are usually music time. Mr. Bryant is our choir master. We call him Santa Claus because that's who he looks like, and he calls us miserable clods because that's how he thinks we sing. But we all have a great time anyway, and we go home everyday feeling very lucky to be at St. George's College - except when we think about homework!

BACK ROW: C. Marshall, B. Cragg, A. Teichman, B. Carter, A. Duncan.

MIDDLE ROW: M. Rubinoff, M. Wilkinson, J. Damanis, A. Marok, G. Mariani, P. Maheux.

FRONT ROW: A. Holwynch, A. Thompson, J. Wood, H. Sturgess, K. Giallonardo, C. Gaal N. Kwong, T. Ugur.

My First Day with Mr. McElroy!

I arrived at school at 8:20. Everybody was sitting down and whispering at the lowest level. Suddenly we all heard big groans and big footsteps coming our way. A big scarce figure walked in. It said "Hello you urchins, I am your teacher Mr. McElroy!" Everybody stood up and tucked their shirts in and had their shoes shined. He came in and sat down. We all had desks that looked like they'd been sitting there for centuries. They had writing all over them, and no one could fit any of their books in them. Second period we had Mr. Leatch. It looked like he had been parachuting from a plane for five years. Third period we had Mr. Birkett; he was the best French teacher I had ever seen. Fourth period we had Fr. Michael, he was bragging about his great looks all the time. At lunchtime Mr. McElroy wouldn't say grace until everybody was quiet. Finally everybody was quiet and we could eat lunch. Last period I had to collect my homework and go home. On the subway my bag ripped and all my books fell out on to the railway. A caretaker came to help, but most of my books were lost. The next day Mr. McElroy asked the class who had not completed their homework. Everybody's hand was down except mine. I told him the whole story, I got new books, and the assigned homework was easy! The second day of school was easy as I knew almost everyone. I really like St. George's and I am glad I came!

BACK ROW: T. Schroeder, J. Walker, M. Morden, J. Stevenson, J. Burul, J. Golding, I. McGuigan, A. Robinson, G. Bassel, Mr. Turvey.
FRONT ROW: M. Jessop, D. Bijur, J. Kennedy, G. Wright, B. Bieberstein, S. McMaster, T. Boyce, C. Warne.

The leader of the class is the teacher, Mr. Turvey, he's the Big Sir.

Next is James, who chews his pencil which isn't nice to see. Third comes Scott McMaster's little guy. Fourth comes Jordan, the only one that can ever catch a fly. Fifth is Justin, the toughest of them all. Sixth is Bernard who loves to play ball. Seventh is Agnus the African goose egg. Eighth is Mathew, he has a woof tooth (a loose tooth). Ninth is John, um, oh, yea he's Mr. Um. Tenth is George he likes to break a leg. Eleventh is Mike the leader of a secret club. Twelfth is Jay he just glub glub. Thirteenth is Chris all he says is I forgot. Fourteenth is Dave he's fought them all. Fifteenth is Tom the show off of us all. Sixteenth is Tim he just has a ball. Seventeenth is me the greatest of them all. Last but not least is Mr. Iga biga baga booga, but then, he's just a pen.

SENIOR SCHOOL HIGH PARK RUN

Excerpts from "Murmurs in the Forest"

As the cross-country runners raced down into the ravine ...

"Look, don't follow me!! I'm trying to find a hiding place in the woods", moaned David Mullin.

"By now, all the good places to hide have been taken by Turvey, Rogers and Shelley. So come on, let's have a race", replied Jon Baillie.

Meanwhile, in the middle of the park and far behind the last of the staff runners ... "Dunkley and Ackley must think that we're real buffoons. All his exercise for a lousy tin of grape juice and a few house points", concluded Michael Manchester.

"Ya, but this sure beats 'Parlez-vous francais' and 'il fait beau aujourd'hui' or falling asleep in Eco class", mumbled Theo Sevier.

And far behind the others and forgotten by all ...

"Are you sure we're going in the right direction? I haven't seen a soul for twenty minutes." grunted an exhausted Sam Wright.

"Sam, be quiet and keep walking!!", said a worried Jon Hess as he reached into his back pocket for one of Mr. Keenan's topographic maps of the area.

"There's no way that Mr. Ackley set up this course this morning. He hasn't walked, let alone run this far in two years", added Armstrong.

"Next year I'm gonna run with the others guys instead of being chased by the skunks and ground hogs!" concluded Ben Hatcher.

JUNIOR SCHOOL HIGH PARK RUN

FIRST SOCCER TEAM

BACK ROW: F. LaFlair, A. Chow, B. Anderson, P.J. Obourne, A. Satchu, G. Thompson, N. Shelly, A. Armstrong, D. Mullen.
FRONT ROW: M. Baily, D. Yamada, E. Metavish, T. Morgan, E. Firla, D. White.
ABSENT: Mr. Dunkley, M. Rudane.

The creation of a soccer team is a very long and difficult process, but our coach Mr. Wayne "The Hamburger" Dunkley was able to form the senior team using his coaching genius. He kept the same team as the year before with one or two exceptions. The 1987 team strove to be the best and was on several occasions, such as when we beat S.A.C. for the first time in the history of S.G.C.'s soccer history. But the season also had its disappointing moments; the worst being a last minute loss to U.C.C. A major part of any season were occasionally damaged in critical areas of anatomy. Of course Mr. Dunkley would be there with his usual words of consolement, "you weren't going to use it anyway".

The senior soccer team will always remember the time spent in Montreal, and what is Montreal without Nittalo's the magnificent motel loved by the underworld? Our gruelling schedule began with a gourmet breakfast and then we travelled by train to L.C.C. Invitational Tournament. The weather was perfect for soccer, and everyone on the team enjoyed themselves. We played very well, reaching the semifinals with ease. Unfortunately we lost to Loyola 2-0 which ended our string of victories at the tournament.

Since it is the last season for most of us, I would like to thank all our various coaches and supporters for all they have done for us, and conclude by saying it has been a pleasure playing soccer for the past seven years.

This year's under sixteen team went out to destroy last year's record, which wasn't hard. We were blessed with a strong and powerful defender unit and co-captain Chris Yelle, Diarmid Thompson and Max Perren. Our halfbacks were headed by co-captain Mike Jordan, Charlie 'Lighting Horse' Wilson and Tim Stewart. The scoring machine was Jason 'I know I am the best' Start.

The team started the season off with a big win (last year's Teams record) and were ready to take on the world. We ended up with a couple other wins before the ISAA tournament.

We went up to SAC only to find that the fields were covered with 6 inches of wet snow. The tournament ended on a down note with two ties and one loss.

This however didn't affect us at ALL because we had won that game that all wanted to win. The Staff-Student soccer game. We ran circles around the over-the-hill teachers (Dunkley, Darcy, Ackley) and played man to man with the inexperienced young teachers (Keenan, Clarke, Holdsworth ...). With superb goaltending from John Atkinson we chewed them up and spat them out with a 2-1 defeat.

Thanks is entitled to Mr. Curly 'You think I enjoy watching you guys play' Walker. He came to every practice, with are a great team, and did his very best.

Thank you Sir!

As that coach of ours closed his eyes he was thinking of his next means of attack. Mr. Morgan pondered for a few seconds but he knew that he could count on that beloved team of his. He regarded his attacking, force to be Mark Turvey, whom he nicknamed "Speedy".

For most of this season we were faced with many challenges including how to get the team to the correct soccer field. However, the rest of the season was very exciting and many of the players will never forget any of the games we played.

After the extreme success of the last year's campaign, this year's team had a great deal of pressure on its shoulders. Last year's comedy line stepped into the lime-light of the opening act, hoping to "keep the dream alive". The team consisted of seasoned veterans Dave Lyons, Roger Leistra, Andrew Baldwin, Victor Mehra, Richard Needham and additional talent in the form of the two towers, a G.Q. model and a blue-nose whale. Despite this overwhelming array of talents, the team finished the season with a disappointing 3-7 record.

On behalf of all the fellows, we'd like to thank our dad ... Pop Nakatsu for his spirited efforts in turning this group of young lads into a lean-mean volleyball machine.

Better luck next year "Gold Nuggets".

Under 16 volleyball was pure anarchy. Players in various stages of dress beating each other before games and at practise. With our dedicated coach, Mr. Clarke, we approached each game with total fear of being cut, since there were 14 people on the first game of the season, the fact that there were still 14 people on the last game did not matter. But on the lighter side, we learnt valuable skills (Hey you have to put something sappy here, right?) which we can utilize to getting rowdy at the game and abusing the blind referee and giving bus drivers headaches. It's been as though this year's volleyball season was not enjoyable due to the coach and the players.

“THE PLAY IS THE THING”

For the last few years the Drama Society has presented a fairly heavy drama during the Fall term. This year it was decided to attempt a comedy, and “The Play’s the Thing” by Ferenc Molnar (adapted from the Hungarian by P.G. Wodehouse) was decided on.

By way of experiment, two of the leading roles were double cast, and audiences therefore had the opportunity to see a different cast combination on each of the four evenings the play was performed.

Unfortunately, we were unable to attract as many people as we had hoped, but those who did come voted the experiment a great success. Our grateful thanks are due to all who made the production possible.

BACK ROW: K. Schoeder, G. Fisher.

FRONT ROW: R. Gilfillan, S. Herron, M. Thompson, M. Show, R. Skippin, J. Stewart, T. Shmitt.

ABSENT: B. McAdie.

The team enjoyed a successful season, participating in three major meets. At the East York Invitational Harrier Meet at Taylor Creek Park we encountered reasonable weather but a course that seemed to have been hosed down by the organizers before the race (perhaps making it more interesting for spectators and/or non-running coaches!). Out of a field of 131 runners Mark Thompson placed 43 in the U15 division and David Schmid 74. (Mark's performance was quite an achievement since he spent half the race trying to find a lost shoe in this sea of mud!) Out of a field of 143 runners in the U17 category Rory Gilfillan and Graham Fisher placed 81 and 92 respectively.

Our next race was the TSSWA-TSSA invitational at High Park. Every runner in the province worth his salt was there since the meet was considered to be a preview for OFSAAA. Consequently the competition was pretty stiff. Our best performance on this windy and very cold day was turned in by Mark Thompson (U15) who placed 128 out of a field of 400 runners.

We concluded the season at the ISAA Final held at Trinity College School in Port Hope. Both U15 and U17 courses were extremely challenging, although the competition was certainly not that which we had grown used to. Out of 52 runners in the U15 race, Mark Thompson placed 5, Scott Herron 11, David Schmid 12, Carl Schroeder 24 and Geoff Stewart 28. (It should be noted that Schroeder could have been running as a U14.) In the U17 category, out of some 55 runners, Martin Shaw placed 29, Rory Gilfillan 39, and Richard Skippin 38.

Personal notes: In future seasons Thompson will be glueing his feet onto his shoes (or is it the other way around?) Schmid still swears he runs better with 121 lbs. of clothes on while Herron has definitely decided he prefers to warm up with something (anything?) on. Geoff Stewart has discovered the reason for his existence (running) and Schroeder has decided to give up Beethoven and Soviet Studies (?) to pursue a full-time career as a brainy athlete.

The older guys are less interesting: Shaw can't decide between running and French (he can't seem to do either with a broken leg), while Gilfillan proved he can run while missing all kinds of internal anatomy. Contrary to popular opinion, Skippin's name does not describe his attendance record this season (does it Richard?!?). And finally, both the French Fisher learned from his Berlin exchange student, and McAdie's avant garde shorts gave a touch of class to an otherwise pretty flippin' rowdy bunch of guys (athletes?).

LOWER SCHOOL CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM

The team participated in a number of meets, the U14's doing quite well wherever they competed. Unfortunately we were not able to field a U12 team due to the minimum number of four runners needed to place.

In our first meet at Holy Trinity school in Richmond Hill the U14's placed third as a team, with strong performances by Kevin Lint (9), Jade Leung (13) and Jeff Kopas (14). Over 100 runners participated in the race. Our next meet was organized by the York Montessori Schools at Sherwood Park in Toronto. This time it was Jeff Kopas with a 6th place finish who led the pack. Kevin Lint was close behind in 10th place. The team again finished third overall.

Mr. Timm organized a meet at High Park, but unfortunately he got so involved in unnecessary details that he didn't manage to hang onto a copy of his own team's results!

Needless to say, the team did very well, no thanks to him!

The ISAA final took place at Appleby College in Oakville with many parents and friends present.

We entered two teams in this race. Our 'A' team (Kopas, Lint, Leung, Thornbury) placed second and our 'B' team (Gundy, Gardiner, Watchorn, Hay) fifth. Kopas finished, 13th, Lint, 16th and Thornbury, 17th. Thanks very much to those parents who turned out to see the team go through its paces (whew!)

This just in; Next year Mr. Timm will be driving an armoured truck with a plexi-glass partition to prevent runners from destroying his concentration while he's at the wheel. His 'news receiver' (a radio that does not pick up music) will however be transferred to the new vehicle. And finally, it is not true that he had never heard of a standard transmission, he'd just never seen one!

Thanks to one and all who came and supported the team, and a final thanks to Mr. Dunkley for springing for pizza, doughnuts, hot chocolate, pop all when the runners needed it least!!

The 87-88 1st Hockey Team had a wonderful season. We managed to beat everyone of our opponents at least once during the year except for the school on the hill, even the old boys fell victim to the awesome might of the guys who showed up. We fought our way to the finals of the Pickering Tournament, and emerged with a silver.

By the way those who did not attend support day for the game against St. Andrews missed one that

The under sixteen hockey team was a fine mix of veteran players, talented new students and graduates of Mr. Clarke's under fourteen hockey programme.

The season began on a high note with a 5-3 victory over Crescent School. This hard hitting close game was to be the first of eight such games played throughout the season. The team secured three victories and a tie in these encounters and distinguished themselves as a very formidable foe.

I wish the best to those who will be moving on in 1988-89, and would like to thank all of the enthusiastic parents and fans who contributed so much to the experience of the team.

Well...I said in last year's Yearbook "We can really do it", and this year we did it even better. The St. George's Ski Team had its best season ever. The senior A team finished second every race (out of 8 schools) placing second overall at the end of the season. Rob Malo (Grade 13) won two out of the four races and strong results by the rest of the senior A team of Dave Cole (Gr. 13), Giles Anderson (Gr. 12), Ted Morgan (Gr. 12) and myself (Grade 13), helped maintain our competitive position throughout the season. The senior B team placed second this year, the junior A team finished third, with great results by Graham Fisher (Gr. 12) and the junior B team had a great finish of third place. Congratulations to every member of this team. Rob Malo's first place finish and the tremendous efforts of our "gutsy" rookies produced our great results.

Special thanks to Mr. R. Walker. He has worked extremely hard to coach the Ski Team and his efforts have finally paid off. His training sessions at Earl Bales Hill helped us improve our times greatly.

Thanks once again Mr. Walker for a memorable, successful season in 1988 and for the five fantastic years I have had on the St. George's College Ski Team. Best of luck in the future!!!

Congratulations Guys! The Ski Team had finally proven itself let's make it an annual tradition. Good Luck next year!

HOUSE DRAMA FESTIVAL

INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DRAMA FESTIVAL

“IT CAME FROM THERE”

ONLY ROW: L. Nichols, G. Smith, S. Butler, D. Yamada, S. Hobe.

This year's contribution to the 1988 Independent Schools' Drama festival was "It Came From There" by Robin Fulford, following last year's successful "eddy-candyside". The play had originally been co-directed by Michael Burgess and Mr. Fulford four years ago. This year it was to take on a different feel than it previously had with a new cast and a fresh interpretation by the director and actors.

Rehearsals were strenuous but fun. The fighting scenes had to be kept under control so that no one was injured, especially me. I think I was pushed around and thumped by all four members of the cast (in the play that is) at one point or another. And when I was killed on page one, they were left to feel sorry for themselves, some of them at least. Greg, played by Drew Yamada, acted as my guardian and general good guy, successfully managing to drag my body on and off stage in an attempt to get me buried, I think. Stephen Butler's role was difficult to play, for it is through his character that the audience must try and understand the frustration and insanity of the boys' situation. Chris, played by Lawrence Nichols, was certainly beautifully portrayed as the long haired, unshaven youth with a fixation for guns and not animals. And finally Gordon Smith adeptly played the character of Brian, rounding off this ensemble quite nicely.

The festival for the second year running was held at UCC with our very own Father Michael adjudicating. It was not a competition, but a time for the actors of the schools that took part to get together in workshops and enjoy themselves. We were all very pleased with our performance and felt that we had done the play justice. I think I speak for all when I say it was a privilege to have worked with the author and director Robin Fulford and that he helped bring a new dimension to our acting skills.

My life is as the ebbing sands of time,
 Enriched and yet withered in its fight,
 I realize in death there is no crime,
 No wrong condemns us to eternal night.
 I walk the path of life and feel its pain,
 The hottest coals upon my feet do bear,
 and as the lion's master do I tame.
 Inspecting each trick with loving care.
 And soon my soul burns stronger than my mind,
 In preparation for the great event,
 The centre of my being I must find,
 For separation is what I lament.
 And as I sip the knowledge of my past,
 I laugh and cry embracing death at last.

 No real reasons
 You, unlike the seasons
 Only came and went
 But like the seasons
 Still no real reasons.

My Dear, why do you notice me and flee?
 must you always hide in the dark shadows?
 why you behave this way I cannot see.
 we were two friends; you turned us into foes.
 Have I done what you adjudge most dreadful?
 I do not mind what you did think of me;
 you could well have found me resentful.
 I was even willing to let you be.
 My heart no longer weeps to see you leave,
 Though I loved you as one would a goddess.
 Yet when I recall how you made me grieve,
 I only end up admiring you less.
 My respect was yours; I mistaken.
 I swam to you and perceived a siren.

Max Brunelle

What are we doing here?

Why are we here? Are we no more than the naturally intelligent product of basic evolution? Or are we the children of some higher being, here to achieve some sort of fulfillment in life? Is there a meaning to our existence, or are we just here for the ride? Do we even exist? Or is it all just going on in my mind?

The problem appears to be that the more intelligent the mind becomes the more room for error in thought there is. It begins to perceive things that are not there, to suggest forces and powers that have no tangible existence beyond the imaginings of a small group of...

We all have our own little ideas of God, Life, the Universe and all the really big concepts. What the actual answer is to all the questions that we ask ourselves from time to time really depends on what you yourself think.

We can say that God does or doesn't exist. However you look on it you then run into the problem of what existence is. Love and Hate do not exist in concrete form, but they most certainly exist--how else can one explain people spending their lives together--or killing each other? However, the complexity of such a definition of existence would certainly be open to...

I left a pair of sunglasses on the beach the other day. I didn't realize I got home and was getting ready to go to a party and couldn't find them. They were my favourite pair of shades, real wayfarers by Ray-Ban of California, with blue sparkles on them. They were really cool, but I left them at the beach. Bummer.

A Poem

Wind in the cloud,
Sun in the storm
Light in the darkness
A child is born.

Cross on the hill,
Dark goes the sun,
Lift him high!
The game is begun.

Shot in the darkness,
Spear in the side.
Float in your blood,
Or step aside.

The infant is gone,
The riders are here
Galloping fast;
The end is near!

Down the rider,
Up goes the spear,
In goes the arrow,
Death is here!

Blood in the air,
Death in the sea,
The city has fallen,
They're coming for me.

Why does this woman of deceit wear such clothes of false righteousness,
Her hands and feet shackled to mother earth,
Her eyes red with fear and anguish?
Yet she clasps a Bible, her fingers driving deeper into its surface.
causing the blood of many stream from its pages.
Her face turns pale at the sight of her burning soul,
her useless life flung among a sea of screaming waves.
Her sanity lies deep beneath the earth,
Her madness held within those whom she loves.
Her supple flesh crawls at the thought of days gone by,
As past rears it weary head.
She gasps for air trying to breathe the future
But cannot afford the costs of time.

Discovery

Searching my life,
Seeking one's humanity;
Listening to the words of Lincoln, Ghandi,
and John F. Kennedy.

Taking the time to understand oneself,
and the others that we see;
Looking at what is,
and just what might come to be.

The choices we make today,
and the results that may come tomorrow;
The joys in life that make us cry,
and the tragedies that fill our hearts with sorrow.

It's all mixed up,
All the elements on the road to self discovery;
Looking at what is,
and what just might come to be.

Nature is Crying

Nature is crying,
Can you smell it in the wind?

Nature is searching,
Can you touch it on the land?

Nature is trusting,
Can you feel her warm waters?

Nature is dying,
Can't you see it everywhere?

Nature is dying,
When will we care?

A Wooden Floor

This floor, mere planks of wood unfinished, grey inside
with grains ever crossing internally just to make it all the stronger within but it's there to be trod upon used and disregarded
spoke only occasionally
A complement to the character within for being ever used and trod upon
It deserves the very most of the sympathy and respect we have to give but people will just keep shuffling shuffling over it
and over all who sympathize with this plain and simple floor.

Society is a Farce

Society.

Society is a Farce.

We as humans think we are so "Sophisticated"
We can send men to the moon
But we belittle ourselves with the idiotic things we do,
We drink, We do drugs, We kill, We terrorize.
We inflict pain without mercy.
And we are sophisticated.
There is no doubt we have accomplished a great deal,
But at what cost?

Our Humanity
Our Senses
Our Individuality
Our Self respect
Our Pride

When I Lived Here and There

The screen in house
Built for me
Housed a man
Who thought aloud
Of what he'd seen
And of how he felt
People would drop by
To laugh and listen
But they all left
One day when he thought
too loud
Since that day
They no longer come 'round.

Behind Me Now

A closed door
And a turned head
Stand back
In the shadows of his life.

With nowhere to go
And no one to even point him
In the right direction
He goes out into the world.

A world
Where all he can see
And all he knows
Is tied up
In an unraveling ball
Of mild social acquaintances
And old friends.

Feeling tight and lonely
He'll jump
Though, for the wrong reasons
He thinks he's built a net
With those he knows
But no one can catch him now
And no one will even try.

Paralysis

To look in all four directions at once,
But see the same facade with every turn,
Makes dauntless displays, futile stunts;
For, in me, clear bias' rarely burn.
Diplomats, in black robes and pale wigs,
Benefit from active immobility;
But I'm kept apart from all these prigs,
By simple belief in monogamy.
The vigilant painter who sees himself,
Enveloped by so much to paint he writes,
Could be evading prospective pelf,
Yet a page surpasses a crippled knight.
As long as my ambivalent thoughts persist,
The threat of paralysis will exist.

YEARBOOK CLUB

It is at this time each year that the yearbook editor asks himself the question, Why did I take this job? The hours are long, the praise little and the pay non-existent. What makes someone accept the honour of holding such a seemingly ungratifying and thankless position?

As I try to think of an answer I imagine to what extent the completion of this book will affect world events. Maybe, the S.G.C. yearbook might play a role in global affairs, yet sadly, I come to the conclusion that it doesn't. No matter how well I lay out the pages, process the prints, or type the copy, there still will be conflict in the Middle East and terrorist attacks throughout the world. Though why when I realize that I have little hope of saving the world from its spiral towards destruction, am I staying up past 2:00 A.M. the fifth night in a row?

The answer is really quite simple. It comes from considering not how the yearbook will affect others, but instead, how this book will affect ourselves. The feeling of honour that comes from holding this position arises from the realization that I, as editor, through the medium of this book have been entrusted with the responsibility of preserving a commodity that is irreplaceable - your memories.

The yearbook is not just a 176 page book of stats and figures. It is a repository of the events that none of us will ever forget. Twenty years from now when we are recalling with fondness our S.G.C. years, it will be to this book that you will turn. Its well-thumbed pages will, time and time again, replay all your memories. It has been for this reason that I and all my predecessors have endured the position of editor. It stems from the basic desire to put back into the school a little of what we have taken out.

I must, of course, shine the spotlight onto those who have unselfishly given of themselves in order to create your book. Thank you Ms. Tevlin. This book would not have been possible without your guidance, support and encouragement. You will surely be missed! Also, thank you Mr. Fulford, as your help once again has been invaluable. Finally, I would like to thank my good friend, David Bourne, who taught himself how to type just so he could make me happy.

I would also like to thank the school for the enjoyment I received through this position. Next year I will pass the mantle to someone else. Remember that this is your book. You either make it great or it will die. I would like to leave you with this thought paraphrased from a speech the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy: "Ask not what the S.G.C. yearbook can do for you, but ask what you can do for the yearbook!"

Respectfully,
Geoffrey Petkovich
Editor

This past year was one of the best that I can remember for the Photography Club. We received quite a large amount of new equipment from the Kinsella's which has been most useful. The new Nikor enlarger has visibly improved the quality of our prints (see for yourself; compare this, and the next yearbook to some of the earlier ones).

The club has continued to be almost too successful, with more members than can be manageably taught the skills of the darkroom. Ahh the trials and tribulations of prosperity. With all of the raw talent that this club possesses, it can only reach greater heights in the future years.

Speaking of future years, as of June 1988 I will no longer be the head of the club, since I am moving on to university. One more change in the sea of changes that the year has brought upon St. George's. The Photography Club will be led by Mike Adamson, who is not only a masterful technician in the darkroom, but also an artist with a camera (get him to show you the guitar pictures).

The past three years as club head have taught me a lot, about human nature, as well as photography. This will be remembered with happiness and satisfaction.

NORTH AMERICAN MODEL UNITED NATIONS

For the third year in a row, St. George's was accorded the honour of being the only high school allowed to attend the North American Model United Nations. The third annual NAMUN was held from February 18-21 at the airport Marriot hotel. The two countries represented this year were Mexico and Italy. The participants were: A. Daly, R. Dixon, R. Kouvuouian, P. Laflair and T. Logan (Mexico); J. Ballie, U. Bizarri, B. Clarke, A. Polak and A. Satchu (Italy). Discussion ranged from situations in Afghanistan and Honduras to debate about the international role of the IMF. The conference was a rewarding experience for all who attended. As before, NAMUN represented a unique opportunity to meet and work with university students on an equal basis. The entire conference was a great success and all the participants strongly encouraged others to get involved - it was worth the effort.

Thanks to Mrs. McRory, Mr. Love and Mr. Stevenson for their help in preparing for the conference and attending as our staff advisors.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO MODEL UNITED NATIONS

This year St. George's managed to send a total of 18 delegates to the SOMA conference - the largest contingent we have ever mustered. A total of six nations were ably represented by our students. The delegations were: Algeria: A. Collussi, B. Loughridge, R. Brown; Benin: G. Beers, G. Smith; Bhutan: A. Bennett, S. Butler, D. Teichman; Maldives: J. Arscott, F. Bieberstein, C. Doulis; Mexico; A. Daly, R. Dixon, P. LaFlair; and finally Papua New Guinea: M. Johnston, C. Sayers, C. Sievert. The conference was a great success and those of us who are moving on sincerely hope that this kind of participation will continue in the future. SOMA represents a very unique opportunity for high school students - one which St. George's students should no longer avoid, but should seek out and immerse themselves in.

THE YALE POLITICAL UNION INVITATIONAL TOURNAMENT

Members of the St. George's Speaking Union attended an invitational debating tournament held by the Political Union of Yale University. The team consisted of C. Sayers, A. Bennett, C. Seivert, M. Johnston, C. Doulis and G. Smith with Mr. Kerr acting as team coach. The group arrived at the Ivy League college after a ten hour bus ride that included a belated 6 A.M. departure and numerous fast food stops. The debaters were billeted in residence with students of the University. Some notable success of the tournament were C. Sayers placing third at the novice level and C. Doulis placing seventh in the Varsity Division. The tournament was attended by schools from the New England area as well as some other Canadian Schools. Despite little sleep and overdoses of McDonald's food, a good time was had by all as well as an interesting view of University life.

Before I begin my report, I want to wish each of our graduates the best in their endeavours. I hope that their years at St. George's College will stand them in good stead and provide many fond memories and friendships both with their fellow students and with the staff.

During the past school year, we have conducted over 120 individual school tours for prospective students, assisted the library with volunteer staff and hosting Hot Dog Days to raise money and provided many students with blazers etc. through our Blazer Exchange. Georgian House has offered the students many new items such as sweaters, jams and rugby shirts, all of which they are proud to wear as St. George's College students.

With the assistance of the Men's Association, we hosted a reception for New Parents. Our annual Mother's Coffee Party and new Mother's Dinner were tremendous successes. Once again, we provided refreshments for the Confirmation and the Graduation

Tea. Our Annual Meeting and Luncheon plus our Staff-Guild Executive Luncheon were two highlights of the year.

This year, our fundraiser was a 50's Valentine's Hop. Besides being a lot of fun the evening realized a profit of $17,000 from our ticket sales and auction. From these funds together with membership revenues we have been able to donate $4,000 towards school projects, $4,000 towards the St. George's Foundation and $10,000 towards bursaries.

Our aim is to have every St. George's College mother involved through their membership and once their son leaves the school they will maintain this involvement through our life membership programme.

MUSIC APPRECIATION

Music Appreciation returned this year with a few changes. No longer in the Blue Room, the club became more apparent as the music could be heard wafting through the Upper School halls at Lunch on Day 1.

A varied selection of music was presented that included U2, Led Zeppelin, and Echo and the Bunnymen to name a few. This year also saw the return of Music Depreciation that featured such artists as Emo Phillips and Robin Williams.

The club was more successful this year with an increase in regular attendance as well as in the number of people presenting their kind of music.

Thanks go to Mr. Keenan, Andrew Delph and Andrew Golding for their help and support. Thanks also to those who showed up.

OTHER MOVIE CLUB

ADAM CANTOR'S REPORT

'Friends, Romans, Countrymen; lend me some grey matter,' Words from Geoff Browne's immortal speech which I ripped up and threw across the stage.

We admit the dress was a mistake.

But other than that, it was a great year. We showed such classics as:

1. Plan 9 from Outer Space
2. Thunderbirds to the Rescue

3. First Spaceship on Venus (RECORD: Everyone walked out on it) and the various Gamera films, along with a dainty touch of Kung-Fu.

We would like to thank Mr. Paulin for 'volunteering' his soul for the benefit of the fans (fans?) We would also like to thank Indranil Bhattacharya for coming out and supporting all (barr none), we repeat all eight films that we bothered to show.

We held such gala events as democracy week, The Student Film Festival and Awards (A.K.A. the homegrown contest), and Jim and Tammy Bakker do Music Appreciation Day (the dress lives forever).

In the third term we hope to have 'Wedding Day' week and The Soft Shoe Routine.

'Still, I can't help feeling that it would be a shame to let The (OTHER) Movie Club die-do, please, come along and support us.

Father Adam

Ahh, get away Geoff, NOOOOOOOOoooo....

Due to a technical difficulty, The Other Movie Club will be delayed.

Thank you for waiting

Geoff has nothing to say.

CHOIR PROGRAM

CHAPEL

When I became chaplain of St. George's (can it really be 7 years?) I determined to do everything I could to ensure that chapel, and everything it stood for, was seen to be at the very centre of our corporate life-chapel services are, after all, the only regular occasion on which the whole school meets together. As we say good-bye to John Allen, John Bradley and Maurice White, these people who have contributed significantly to the school in general and to our worship in particular. I hope I may be excused for looking back and reviewing some of the changes which have taken place since I arrived.

In order to encourage greater participation in our services readers began to be chosen from a wider range of students, and our intercessions became student-led too. We established house chapels each Wednesday and on Thursday a Grade 8 student now presents a talk on a man or woman of faith whose life and work has benefited the world. We extended our choice of hymns, and the introduction of the Green Book gave us a wider range of services, psalms and prayers to draw on. More recently we started to use the Book Of Alternative Services, which includes the Eucharist in modern English as well as in traditional language. I've used both.

On the last Friday of each month we have a full choral Evensong, but on other Fridays we now worship at the beginning of the day. This was very controversial at first, but everyone seems to have got used to it now. Each month we have a chapel collection for a different charity and this year we raised exactly $3 000, almost double the previous year's total. As an ongoing project we contribute to two Foster Parent Plans of Canada to help support a child in Burkino-Faso.

The non-compulsory celebration of the Eucharist before school begins on Wednesday mornings - introduced in September of 82 - has been faithfully attended by committed groups of staff and students, especially from the Lower School, supplemented on special occasions by those responding to invitations to celebrate Name Days, etc.

I inherited one Choral Eucharist each term (All Saints Day, Ash Wednesday and Ascension Day) but we now celebrate Epiphany and Easter as well, and the annual service of Baptism and Confirmation now takes place within the context of the Eucharist. I am pleased that despite a decline in numbers last year, more and more people are making their communion. This year the total number of communicants was 1842, this compared with 1277 at the end of my first year here. Incidentally, because the High Altar is so far away, and out of vision of those at the sides of the chapel, I introduced a Nave Altar. This makes everything less remote and has been generally well-received.

We have welcomed a wide range of distinguished preachers to our services.

This year the list included the Primate, the Most Reverend Michael Peers, the Archbishop of Toronto, the Most Reverend Lewis Garsworthy, and the Coadjutor Bishop, the Right Reverend Terence Finlay. The Primate returned to face a barrage of questions from the graduating class.

All in all, I doubt if chapel will ever be the most popular activity at St. George's, or any other school, I believe we continue to move in the right general direction, and I appreciate the help and support I receive from many people.

In the year of his retirement, Mr. John Bradley must be singled out. St. George's College would not exist without his vision, determination and dedication. I am deeply grateful for his encouragement. The retiring Headmaster, John Allen, showed confidence in me by appointing me and supporting me. I am proud to enjoy - and enjoy is exactly the right word - the friendship of both these founders of the school. We shall miss them, and assure them our good wishes for health and happiness in their golden years.

We also bid farewell to Maurice White, who has served the school faithfully since the very beginning.

I have to thank Dr. Giles Bryant for his genial co-operation. I appreciate all he does to ensure that our services are enriched with beautiful music.

My grateful thanks are also due to Andrew Van Nostrand, the senior Acolyte for the last two years, and his conscientious and reliable team. It is easy to take their work for granted, but I want them to know that I think they do a super job.

HOUSE LEAGUE

CANADIAN OUTDOOR CLUB

With the guidance of the club's originators, Jon Baillie and Graham Fisher the Canadian Outdoors Club in its first year was a huge success!

The Club's first adventure was a 25 km hike along the Bruce Trail. The trip generated a sense of camaraderie among the very enthusiastic outdoorsmen and a good time was had by all. The adventure showed a lot of people what to bring and not to bring on a hike, such as a tent that doesn't leak (Bert) and of course setting the stage were our very own hiking role-models Graham & Jon the two stubbornest hikers ever to hit the trails.

The Canadian Outdoors Club's last adventure, to close off the school year, was sailing a tall ship on the high, but cold, seas of Lake Ontario. An experience I will never forget (white!) The club, without the presence of Graham and Andrew Golding (and everyone else writing SAT's), set sail and through 4 hour watches, such as 12:00 am - 4:00 am, managed to get little sleep but at the same time learned a lot of important and useful things (eg. which lines to haul or release on command). On the completion of the frightfully cold journey, the smelly, hiker converted sailors had learned how to sail a tall ship, through to a virgin cruise.

Next year the Canadian Outdoors Club is hoping to do some rock climbing and white water rafting, so, don't hesitate to join, you don't know what you're missing!

GRADE 8/9 COMMUNITY SERVICE

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM

This year a pilot project was launched - Community Service for the grade nines and eights.

In the Upper School program the project was compulsory, the boys having to put in 30 hours of Community work over the course of the academic year. With the grade eights a greater flexibility was granted, the parents being asked to play a role in supervising their son's activity.

CHRIS ROSS (GRADE 9)
Hugh Macmillan Centre

What I do and who I do it with.

My first job working here was to go in the pool. Now I go to the pool once a week. I generally just play with the kids. Now the kid I work with has lost use of his legs, so I have to put him into an inner tube and push him around in it. There are usually about ten kids in the pool at a time, and they always like to have water fights. After pool time we take the kids into the showers, and at the other end of the showers the parents are waiting to see their smiling children.

MARCUS ANDREWS

My present Community Service is at the Ukrainian Canadian Social Welfare Services. I attend the Community Service on Fridays and have been doing so for the past three weeks. I have been filing some files in alphabetical order. For the next few weeks I probably will be coming for two days to help an elderly lady by doing chores around her house such as raking leaves and shovelling snow, as well as running errands.

All in all, I very much enjoy my Community Service. The people there are very nice and helpful and enjoy my presence (and have even rewarded me with a Halloween present).

MARK SCHATZKER

The members of the Amnesty Group have written letters to leaders of foreign countries to ask the release of both long and short term prisoners. In the group we have discussed Human Rights and methods of putting pressure on Governments to obtain the release of prisoners (through) petitions and form letters.

The group has also made it possible to have many of the students signing letters. These will be asking for the release of long term prisoners of conscience who have not used or advocated violence.

BRUCE TAYLOR

Ben Hatcher and I work at the Endangered Animal Sanctuary.

The good thing about this place is that we get to know more about animals that you could never see up close. I have come eye to eye with tigers, lions, snakes, leopards, and a black panther. I work usually with birds, ferrets, chinchillas and rabbits.

After a while a little mini-bobcat that was put in because it ate all the pets in the area got to know us. Now we can tap its cage and it will climb up and you can pet its paw. The one bad thing is that it smells but after awhile you get used to it.

Overall it is a very good experience if you like animals or want to get closer to animals of the wild.

ALEX LONG

In Amnesty International we have written letters to Heads of State in such countries as Malaysia, Pakistan, Turkey, Peru and many others. The letters have been sent about prisoners who have been imprisoned for long periods of time.

We have sent "urgent action" letters to countries where prisoners have been threatened with death, torture and other inhuman violent acts. Our group has told upper school classes about Amnesty and we have handed out typed letters for them to sign. This has proven to be very successful.

There are approximately ten members of the group who are equally as enthusiastic as I am. With the help of Dr. Cowgill, our senior member, we enjoy our discussions about world issues.

As leader of the group, I hope we can continue to help and aid prisoners of conscience.

JOHN STEIN

Currently I'm volunteering for two days, every Thursday and every other Sunday.

On Tuesdays I work in the pool with kids with physical and mental disabilities, where I help them get around the pool, one on one.

On Sundays I work with a larger scale of kids with compound disabilities, where I work in the gym for two hours.

BEN HATCHER

The Animal Sanctuary must be the best place for Community Service. The Kentucky Fried across the street (where Bruce Taylor is known by his first, last and middle name) isn't the only "plus" for the animal sanctuary.

Flexible hours, nice people and unusual animals also contribute to its excellence.

Thus far, Bruce and I have managed to dodge the lion's line of fire. The only bite I've received was from a parrot. The parrot had climbed onto my shoulder and I felt something biting my ear. Apart from that, the only other 'wound' is one I have from a ferret's claw.

The smell of the place along with "sometimes dirty" jobs make it an exciting place to work in.

NIGEL RYCE

Sunday afternoons (2-4)

1. Miss M.L. - please call first then visit her in her room as she has some letters she would like read, or the newspaper (It's difficult for her to see and to do this herself).

2. Mr. W. - He is expecting you for a visit, and is looking forward to it - tell him about St. George's and your courses, hobbies etc. You could also ask him to tell you what he did as a boy!

3. Call - she may need some groceries.

CHRIS WARREN

The Hugh Macmillan Centre

On Thursdays at six o'clock pm to seven thirty I swim with the children of the Hugh Macmillan Medical Centre. I usually have one buddy (each volunteer has one patient to help change and to swim with). The children have various medical problems ranging from severe asthma to cerebral palsy. They are a lot of fun in the pool, and play with an array of toys (innertubes, slides, etc).

Most of them are good swimmers and I really enjoy working with them. One may also work with them in the gym, on Saturdays.

JAMES MACFARLANE

What I do for Community Service is work at my church. I help out in the Sunday School. I help the lady who runs the class by telling the children to tidy up, I get out the games and toys, I tell them to behave and listen and help tidy up the room after the children leave.

The grade eight boys have cleared snow for shut-ins, distributed leaflets on behalf of the Alzheimer's Society, helped to distribute food with STOP 103, worked with the Bishop Strachan School on a bake sale.

All in all the program has been very successful and I look forward to its expansion in the coming years.
